CENTRE COUNTY ROBBERS.

Quartet of Desperadoes Given a Hearing at Williamsport.

WERE HELD IN $2.000 BAIL

Lewis the Fellow Who Was Wounded Acted as Spokesman for the Quartet, and Made a Big Effort to Show He Was Not One of the Robbers.

SOME DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

The four bank and post office robbers who made things so interesting in Centre and Union counties are now safe behind lock and key in the Lycoming county jail.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin gives the following account of their arrival at Williamsport and their hearing.

The trip to this city was made without any attempt on the part of the prisoners to escape. The robbers were handcuffed in pairs. The officers have ascertained, that Lewis has served time in the Western Penitentiary for bank robbery, and that Palmer and Ryan have records in both the Western and Massachusetts penitentiaries. Little is known of Shireman Lewis hails from Missouri.

LEWIS WAS SPOKESMAN.

At the hearing Wednesday afternoon before United States Commissioner Bentley, the prisoners were not represented by counsel but Lewis, the wounded man, was spokesman for the crowd, and made a big endeavor every once in awhile to show by the questions he asked the witnesses that he was not a member of the party of robbers. Lewis at once demanded that he and his pals be given a place nearer the witness stand than they were occupying, so they could hear what was being said, and that their handcuffs be removed while they were in the court room. His first request was complied with, but the second was refused.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ON HAND.

United States District Attorney S. J. M. McCarrell, of Harrisburg, appeared for the government, and he was assisted in the examination of witnesses by Postoffice Inspector Wardle, whose headquarters are at Altoona, and who has been in Centre county looking up the case. A number of witnesses testified, telling the story of the robberies and the subsequent capture, and a lot of postage stamps and other articles alleged to have been stolen were produced as evidence. Among the lot were two bottles, supposed to contain nitro-glycerine.

ZIMMERMAN'S EXPERIENCE.

The first witness called was J. B. Lohr, assistant postmaster at Rutherford. He stated that on the night of June 17 the postoffice at that place was broken into and robbed. About $25.65 in stamps were taken and $6.96 in cash. He was not able to recognize any of the prisoners. Reno Zimmerman, of the same place, who also testified, said that he happened along just while the burglars were at work. He was halted by one of the gang, who thrust a revolver into his face. Zimmerman pushed it aside, but was compelled to stand still. The man who held him up he identified as Shireman, and later he stated that Palmer came along, took charge of him and escorting him up along the railroad track held him a prisoner for about an hour. About this time another man came along and said that they could permit Zimmerman to go. While a prisoner the witness was blindfolded and was knocked down by one of the burglar. He was positive as to his identification of Shireman and Palmer.

C. B. Motz, of Woodward, who is the assistant postmaster at that place, testified that the postoffice there was robbed on the night of June 18, and that stamps to the amount of $158 were taken. Among the number was about eleven old yellow special delivery stamps. Among other things taken were five pairs of shoes, twelve rings, two revolvers, a razor and several knives.

Adam Ziegler, of Linden Hall, told of the robbery of the postoffice at that place, and of seeing four men whose general appearance tallied with that of the four men arrested.

Postmaster Ross, of Linden Hall, who was one of the first men to start in search of the gang, said that in company with William Raymond and son and Harry Hagan, he followed the burglars five miles, where he secured a warrant for the arrest of the men, and notified the sheriff. A posse was then formed, and the four men were chased into a barn, where they were later captured. Mr. Ross identified the men as those captured at the barn.

Mrs. Catherman, of Linden Hall, identified a tin pail, a tablecloth, a loaf of bread that she had made and which had been stolen from her cellar, and which had been found in a barn visited by the men under arrest.

County Treasurer Foster told of the capture of the men in the barn, stating that Lewis had a revolver leveled at him, when he pulled a gun and dropped the robber. Later the whole gang was captured in the barn.

LEWIS' IMPROBABLE TALE.

Lewis, who had been objecting to the testimony of every witness, here again broke in with: "I wasn't in their company. I went to the barn alone, and found the revolver. I was going to give it to you (meaning Witness Foster), when you shot me."

Walter Gerrity, who assisted in the capture, searched the barn, he said, and found four revolvers, three bottles of nitro-glycerine, stamps, etc.

Here Lewis again interfered, and asked: "Did you see me in those men's company? I wasn't doing anything only rubbing my eyes, and when I got up he shot me."

DIDN'T NEED BAIL.

Commissioner Bentley made the bail $2,000 each, for court at Scranton in October, and when he had finished asking if the prisoners could furnish the bail, Lewis responded: "Are you talking to me? Well, as far as I am concerned they ain't nothing against me. I don't need bail."

But Mr. Lewis, and his three pals, went to jail just the same.

Splinter Causes Lockjaw.

Clara Kling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Benjamin Kling, of Laporte township, Sullivan county, aged 8 years, died the other day of lockjaw. Several days before she ran an ugly sliver under one of her finger nails, which caused severe soreness after being extracted. She was later taken violently ill and the injured finger began swelling alarmingly fast. Medical aid seemed to avail nothing and the patient little sufferer lay in agony until death relieved her.

Lost Both Bride and License Fee.

A farmer aged 69 years, secured a license at the register and recorder's office in Williamsport, to wed a woman 47 years of age and returned in a short time with the license to get his 75 cents back. His intended bride died of heart trouble the day before the time set for the wedding.

Special Correspondent of This Paper Describes Camp Life in an Interesting Manner for Our Readers.

OUR SOLDIER BOYS ARE ALL WELL,

SOMERSET, July 26th., 1903.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—

Our camp opened officially on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. All the Companies of the five Regiment were paraded on their Company street and stood at attention when the salute was fired by Battery B, and "Old Glory" was hoisted to the breeze, all the Regimental Bands playing "Star Spangled Banner." It was certainly a very inspiring occasion. As soon as camp opened the following routine was begun and is being observed.

Every soldier in the Tenth and Fifth regiments will have reason to long remember the "Pride of Pennsylvania." The pride of Pennsylvania is a large spring located just at the foot of the regimental headquarters and up to date is furnishing water for the 2,000 men of the Tenth and Fifth. The spring was named by Billy Bishop of the Tenth hospital corps, and is now familiarly known by all the boys. The water for the camp is piped in surface line through about five miles of pipe and at no time is fit for drinking purposes. It is not only hot, but dirty.

The brigade has had two very hard parades and reviews already. On Saturday afternoon they met Major General Miller and his staff and this morning at 7:30 they started for town again to meet Governor Pennypacker and staff. Governor Pennypacker will review the brigade on Thursday from an "automobile."

The 5th Regiment has been given the prettiest location on the grounds. The camp is on a slight slope, and is easily drained. The renowned "Company B," holds the right of the Regiment. The camp is on a high piece of ground about a mile from the town of Somerset, and can be easily seen from the "City of White." "Company B" boys are all happy and well and having a royal good time. Of course the "Fresh Fish" or the new recruits are being put through the "mill" and the same routine is being followed with them as we older members went through when we joined the company. But all the boys take their "bumps" good naturedly and assist in giving the other fellow his, who perhaps had been neglected, and feel hurt because he had been forgotten. Captain Taylor was "Regimental Officer of the Day" on Saturday and Lieutenant Philip F. Garbrick is commander of the Guard to-day. Louie Hill is acting as the Colonel's Orderly, and he certainly has a "cinch." Sergeant William Allen has been appointed Quarter Master Sergeant of the company and Corporal William Brown has been promoted to 8th Sergeant of the Company. Corporal J. Victor Royer is filling the position of Company clerk. Well I must close now as the regular Sunday morning inspection is about to take place. Kindest remembrance to all at home. I remain respectfully your friend.

Roger T. Bayard,
Regimental Clerk.

Insurance Promptly Paid.

It is alleged that the late George L. Potter carried life insurance to the amount of ten thousand dollars. Three thousand of this amount was in the Royal Arcanium and Monday Charles Smith showed the writer a check for the amount payable to Mrs. Elizabeth Potter, the widow.

This prompt payment on the part of the Royal Arcanium is highly commendable to this beneficial order.

TRIBUTE TO DEAD COMRADES.

Extract from Minutes of Gregg Post No. 95 G. A. R., July 25, 1903

WHEREAS at our Memorial Service held Sunday July 5th. This Post was called to mourn the loss of four of our comrades who were called away within the last few months.

And WHEREAS one of our number who took part in that service and was greatly interested in it has since been taken from us in a sudden and distressing manner; Therefore

Resolved, That while we sorely miss from our ranks these worthy comrades, we bow with resignation to the will of our Heavenly Father, while we record our testimony to their worth.

Comrade A. V. Hamilton, Late Private Co. G, 210th Reg't Pa. Vols. 1864 to 1865 fulfilled his duties as a soldier in a cheerful and devoted service of his country to the close of the war and received an honorable discharge. As a member of Gregg Post his amiable disposition and cheerful performance of duty were marked characteristics. As a friend and neighbor he was kind and obliging in the extreme and his loss is felt by many outside of his own family connection.

Comrade Erastus Robb, Co. F, 51st Pa. Vols. 1864 to 1865, was as a soldier faithful and efficient and at the close of the war was honorably mustered out with his Company. He was for many years a useful member of Gregg Post, and constant in attendance when the demands of his employment permitted. As a citizen and neighbor he is mourned by all who knew him.

Comrade Lawrence McEntire, Co. 21st Pa. Cavalry 1864 to 1865, served with his Regiment to the close of the war and was mustered out with an honorable record for faithful service. During all the years of his connection with Gregg Post his duties were well done. In private life he was a good citizen, kind neighbor and an upright Christian gentleman.

Comrade Curtin P. Stonerode, Co. H, 2nd Pa. Vols. April 1861, discharged August 1861, mustered as Sergeant Major of 51st Pa. Vols. Oct. 17, 1861, promoted to 2nd Lieutenant June 25, 1864, acting Adjutant of Regt. promoted to Captain October 20, 1864, mustered out December 31, 1864 for wounds received in action August 19th, 1864. His record as above given speaks for itself.

Comrade Stonerode was a faithful and useful member of Gregg Post from its organization to the day of his death, attending its meetings as often as his responsible duties as Agent of Pa. R. R. at Central City would permit. In private life he was characterized by those qualities which have endeared him to his fellow citizens at large and to his religious associates especially. His death leaves a gap in our ranks which cannot be filled and in the community his loss will long be felt.

While our Memorial Service of July 5th was still fresh in our minds, another of our comrades and one who took part in that service with much interest, and with evident emotion, was taken from us by a sad accident which has plunged our whole County in grief and our Post in deep sadness.

Comrade George A. Bayard served in Co. H, 2nd Pa. Vols. April to August 1861. Mustered August 22nd 1862, 1st Lieutenant Co. H, 148th Regiment Pa. Vols. promoted to Captain September 7, 1862, captured June 22nd, 1864. Promoted to Major May 17, 1865, mustered out at end of War as Lieutenant Colonel.

Comrade Bayard's record as a soldier is one which we contemplate with pride and which is calculated to kindle a flame of patriotism in every American breast. Comrade Bayard was endeared to his fellow-citizens by many noble qualities. His sterling integrity and rare devotion to duty were traits which marked him not only as a soldier but in every walk of life, and his genial disposition made him friends wherever he went.

Adopted by Post at their meeting July 25th 1903, ordered entered on minutes of Post, published in County papers, and copy sent to families of deceased.

BULL CREATES PANIC.

Chased Messenger John M. Fisher of this Place out of Express Car.

John M. Fisher messenger of the Adams Express Company between Lewisburg and Bellefonte, had a most exciting experience in his car Friday morning. A bull weighing more than a thousand pounds, strongly crated, was loaded in his car at Rising Springs, to be shipped to Canton, Pa.

The motion of the cars soon roused the bull to fury. His eyes gleamed green and he bellowed with rage. Making terrific lunges in his crate, his violence became so great that suddenly there was a splintering of the stout wooden bars, and in a moment, to the horror of Fisher, the bull was at liberty.

With fierce bellows and quick lashing of his tail he tore around the car, upsetting boxes, crates and barrels, chasing Fisher from one corner to the other.

Fortunately, he managed to reach the door at the end of the car, and, quickly tearing it open, he managed to get out safely.

The trainmen were hastily summoned, and on consultation they concluded the only thing to do was to leave the bull in possession of the car, as no one seemed willing to venture in.

At Coburn, the first station, the car was pulled up to a cattle schute, the door opened, and the bull ran out.

It is safe to say that Mr. Fisher will long remember this exciting experience.

Another Pioneer Gone.

The venerable Isaac Tressler died at his home near Linden Hall on Sunday morning at 4 o'clock after a lingering illness of disease incident to old age. He belonged to one of the old pioneer families of that section of the county and was a good neighbor, an indulgent father, a faithful husband and was always interested in the welfare of his community.

Surviving him are his wife and the following children: E. S. of Rock Springs; Jonathan, of Boalsburg, Wesley, of Centre Hall; Charles, of Peabody, Kan.; Mrs. John Gerts, of Lemont; and Mrs. A. W. Hafer, of Bellefonte.

The deceased was a consistent member of the Lutheran church at Boalsburg where the funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Stonecypher officiating.

Died from Lock-Jaw.

Once again we are called upon to chronicle a death from lock-jaw. This time the victim is Joseph McCoy, son of Thomas McCoy, formerly of this place but now of Bellwood, who died at his parents home in the latter place Friday, July 17. The lock-jaw was produced by wounds inflicted by a toy pistol while playing with it on the Fourth of July.

Joseph was born in Bellefonte and was twelve years of age.

The funeral which took place a few days later was quite largely attended. Joseph was a member of the Presbyterian Sunday school while his parents were members of the United Brethren church. The Sunday school scholars attended the funeral in a body.

The bereaved parents have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in their sad bereavement.

Hospital News.

The following patients were admitted to the hospital during the past week. John Shope, of Milesburg; Mrs. Augustine Laugher, of Scotia; Mrs. Lizzie Burkholder, of Centre Hill and William Lyman, of Bellefonte.

Morris Furey, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Margaret Ameig, of Loveville and Mrs. Frank Hunsinger, of Buffalo Run, have been discharged as cured.

Miss Cordelia Sager, the young girl who was injured on the Central Railroad, underwent an operation for skin grafting Monday which proved quite successful.

AN ERROR IN THE ADDRESS

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1903, by C. W. Hooke.

MISS WINTHROP had just written two letters. They lay upon her desk sealed and stamped, but not addressed. She had dipped her pen into the ink to address one of them, which was placed squarely upon the top of the other. This is a somewhat unusual method of procedure, but it was a habit of the girl's. She sometimes wrote half a dozen letters and made a pile of them, putting on the addresses after they were all done, at some inconvenience to herself and with a risk of misdirecting the missives. Yet she had never suffered that misfortune.

There was a knock, and Miss Winthrop went to the door to find that the visitor was Gladys Darrell. The two girls were from the same small town, had attended the same schools and had been sojourners in the city about an equal time. They preserved an intimacy which was not especially agreeable to either of them, but their early association and the fact that they were studying music under the same masters and had nearly the same circle of acquaintance held them together. Miss Winthrop did not find Miss Darrell congenial; she did not quite approve of her conduct in certain matters, and Miss Darrell perceived it, resented it and concealed within her heart a smoldering animosity, which was made worse by a somewhat absurd jealousy. Yet there had never been anything like a quarrel between them.

When Grace Winthrop opened the door for Gladys a round faced boy who was the landlady's son was passing through the hall. Grace had a message for this youth, and so she excused herself to Gladys, who passed into the little parlor alone.

Gladys crossed to the desk beside the window and saw the two letters lying there. She was a girl whose great natural curiosity was insufficiently restrained by delicacy—the sort of girl who couldn't help wondering for whom those letters were intended. Beside them was a memorandum book about the size of half a playing card. It was open, and a ruler lay across it in such a way as to cover most of the left hand page and leave the other exposed. The visible page bore two addresses—Mr. Henry Lamar, Aldine building, and Mr. Willis Barnes, 21 Broad street. They seemed to have been very recently set down in the book, and the thought flashed through Gladys' brain, "She's been writing to those two fellows."

She glanced quickly toward the door. It was nearly closed, and Grace was still in the hall. Gladys took up the two letters, saw that neither was addressed and put them down again transposed. There was not a visible sign that anything had happened, but the letter which had lain atop before was now below. Gladys went to the other side of the room and sat down in a chair. Her heart was beating uncomfortably hard, and she felt a painful, nervous desire to laugh.

She suspected that both the young men whose names she had read in the little book were deeply interested in Grace Winthrop. As to that, she was willing that Grace should have the preference and the attentions of one of these young men, but she had not yet decided which one. Mr. Lamar had a great deal of money, and Mr. Barnes was very good looking and a lively, engaging companion. It was a difficult choice. As a matter of fact, Gladys had no right to consider any such choice at all for reasons that will presently appear.

Miss Winthrop came back into the room and sat down by the desk.

"I'll just address these letters if you don't mind," she said, with a smile. "Tommy is coming for them in half a minute."

Grace glanced at the little book and then rapidly wrote the two addresses. Tommy came in and got the letters.

There was a brief silence that seemed charged with an electrical embarrassment.

"Have you seen Harry Lamar lately?" asked Gladys suddenly.

The question seemed to force itself from her. It was a relief to say something which approached the subject.

"Not since the other evening," replied Grace, referring to some small social occasion. "I've just written him a letter. He's going to give some sort of an affair in his rooms—like a college 'spread,' with his two aunts as patronesses of the festivities. He asked me to make some suggestions about the music. I have been writing to him and to my mother."

"To your mother!" echoed Gladys, her face suddenly flushing.

"I've made up my mind to tell you about it," said Grace. "I am not good at any sort of concealment. The plain way is the best way for me always. Gladys, we have never been friends in any proper sense of the word. You have never given me any right to do for you what a real friend would do—to advise you and try to help you."

"Do you think I need any help?"

"My mother thinks you do," said Grace gently. "She is a great mother, and she knows everything. That's one reason why I ought to help you now—because I have such a mother and you haven't any. When my mother was here with me week before last she learned a great many things. I'm sure I don't know how. She did not learn them from me, and we did not discuss them. But she has written to me about them. She thinks that you are not doing right, Gladys. You are engaged to Frank Leland at home. He is one of the best fellows in the world, and he trusts you absolutely. That engagement is not formally announced, but it is well known at home. It is not known here. You have asked me not to speak of it."

"I don't want you to speak of it," said Gladys. "I shall probably break it, and the less said the better. I have changed, Grace; we have both changed. Our horizon is broader than it used to be. Frank Leland is nothing but a little storekeeper in a country town, and he will never be anything else. Do you suppose I will go back and bury myself there?"

"You will probably break your engagement!" rejoined Gladys. "Meanwhile you are encouraging the attentions of two men, neither of whom knows anything about it, neither of whom is known to Frank, neither of whom has any idea of the favor that you are showing to the other. Gladys, this isn't honest. It isn't honest enough for me nor for my mother."

Gladys suddenly bent forward in her chair.

"What did you write to her?" she demanded.

"I stood up for you," replied Grace earnestly. "I said that you were overexcited by your life here; that you had lost your balance just a little, but that you would not make any serious mistake. I went over the whole case. I had to because she had done it in her letter. I said that you really loved Frank Leland"—

"I don't!" exclaimed Gladys, with seemingly unnecessary vehemence.

"Well, I said so anyhow," returned Grace, "and I believed it. I said that you were fascinated by Mr. Barnes, but that the man was a mere trifler and that you couldn't help seeing it. As to Mr. Lamar—I don't want to hurt your feelings, Gladys, but the truth must be told. I told it to my mother. You are dazzled by Mr. Lamar's money. You care nothing for him"—

"Did you say that?"

"Certainly," answered Grace. "It's true. Mr. Lamar is one of the most honest hearted, sincere and admirable fellows who ever lived, but you prefer more brilliant qualities. You have an eye for a handsomer man, Gladys, and Harry Lamar, whatever else he may be, is surely not handsome. Now, I don't mind red hair myself," she added, with a laugh. "I think his hair is quite magnificent, and he is such a big, sturdy, manly man! But he doesn't appeal to you. Just to illustrate that point and set my poor mother's heart at rest I told her what you said about Mr. Lamar yesterday."

"I called him an Italian sunset!" gasped Gladys, with horror. "Did you put that in?"

"Yes, I put it all in. Mother won't tell. Oh, it's all a joke, Gladys. You'll go back to Frank Leland and make him the best wife in the world."

"I never will!" exclaimed Gladys. "You don't know me. I will not throw away my life in that little country town. You know nothing about my sentiments toward Harry Lamar."

"You haven't any, Gladys," responded Grace. "You haven't a sentiment of any sort for Harry Lamar. That's exactly what I told my mother."

"What did you tell him?"

"About you? Nothing, of course. And I never will. I told you that I wouldn't mention your engagement and I won't. But, Gladys, you'll have to be a different girl if you care to preserve my respect or the outward signs of my friendship. You are becoming tangled in a mass of concealment and deception that is not honest; that you'll regret some day; that will hurt you and everybody who loves you. It will hurt me to the heart, Gladys, though you may not believe it."

"I don't believe it," said Gladys bitterly. "I think you'll be glad of it. I think you'll do what you can to injure me with Mr. Lamar. But I warn you that you'll fail."

She walked toward the door. Grace rose and followed her. Then she suddenly sat down at the small table and began to cry.

"I knew that I couldn't do this," she said, "but I really tried. I could help you, Gladys, if you'd let me. But I've only made you angry."

Gladys did not know what to say or do. She was wildly impatient to get away. She could think of nothing but the two letters and the fatality which had made her practical joke recoil upon her own head. If she could only catch Tommy there might be time to prevent a catastrophe. She could bribe him and get the letters. She could destroy them or change the addresses in a disguised hand. It seemed to her that she heard the lad's step in the hall.

"You have offended me, Grace," she said, "but—but I'll come back."

She escaped hastily into the hall.

In the latter part of the afternoon Grace received Mr. Henry Lamar's card, with the information that the young gentleman was waiting in the parlor below.

Mr. Lamar seemed to have something on his mind.

"I received your telephone message," said he.

She stared at him.

"I sent no message," said she.

"Not personally," said he, "but I understood that you asked Miss Darrell to do it."

Grace shook her head.

"She called up the Aldine this forenoon," said Lamar, "and she told the man in the office that it was you who were speaking. She had previously mentioned my name, and he had supposed that she wanted to speak with me. So he connected her with the telephone in my room and forgot to break the connection when he found out that she merely wished to leave word for me. So I was called to the telephone and heard most of the conversation, vainly trying meanwhile to break in, of course. She said: 'I'm Miss Grace Winthrop. I have sent a letter to Mr. Lamar by mistake. I wish him to return it unread. Please be sure of this; he must not read it.' That was the substance of what she said. I have brought the letter back to you."

"I don't understand this in the least," said Grace. "There's no reason in the world why you should not read it."

He had put it into her hand. She gave it back to him.

"I understood her to mean," said he, "that this letter was meant for some one else and that it had been sent to me by mistake. I—I was a good deal hurt by the suggestion that I might have read it. Really, it didn't seem like you at all. I'm mighty glad you didn't know anything about that telephone message. I don't honestly care much what Miss Darrell thinks me capable of, but if I supposed that you thought I could do such a thing even by inadvertence— Why, the first words, of course, would let a person know that it wasn't for him, and"—

He completed the sentence with a gesture of mild horror.

"You may be very sure that I know better," said Grace. And he thanked her with a somewhat absurd earnestness which gave her the very first hint that she had ever had of the state of this young man's heart. The recognition of the fact was not painful except in its intensity. It brought a sort of confusion with it. The girl forgot what they had been talking about—forgot Gladys and the letter until Lamar recalled them to her.

"Perhaps you'd better open it," said he. And she did so.

"Why, this is to my mother!" she exclaimed.

Mr. Lamar was a slow but a very accurate thinker. He perceived that the really extraordinary feature of this affair was the fact that Gladys Darrell should have possessed such a peculiar piece of information.

"You—you wrote one to me, of course," said he. "Did you pile them up? I've seen you do it. Was Miss Darrell there?"

"Really, really," cried Grace, with a mistaken loyalty, "Gladys would never have done such a thing! I will not believe that she changed the letters."

"But she did, you know," said Lamar, with calm decision, "and, upon my word, I'm inclined to be obliged to her. Somehow I think it's—it's brought us together just a bit—better friends you know. I—I don't know why I should nor why I think so, but hasn't he looked at her with a desperate pleading that she should say that they were just a little bit better friends than they had ever been before. And she laughed at him and gave him her hand. And he kissed it, which, after all, is hardly a friendly thing to do—if one wishes to choose his words with precision.

How a Duke Bought a Wife.

In a church near Edgeware, England, is the mortuary chapel of the Chandos family, with a huge marble tombstone and a figure in Roman costume of the Duke of Chandos, with one of his wives on either side. A romantic story is told about the marriage of the duke's third wife. The duke, who lived early in the eighteenth century, is said to have been driving through Marlborough, and while halting at the castle inn to have heard a woman's screams proceeding from the yard. He went to see what was the matter and found a beautiful girl at the mercy of a hostler, who was beating her cruelly. The duke interfered and the hostler declared that the girl was his wife, and therefore he had a right to beat her, but that he was willing to sell her for $100. The duke paid down the money and took the girl away, had her educated and eventually married her. The quaint story is recorded in a book which is preserved in the British museum and which is bound in crimson velvet that remained over from the coffin of the duchess.

An Enterprising Editor.

Earle C. Tuten, the new editor of the Bellefonte Republican wants to give away a new organ to some church in Centre county. The contest opened July 1, and will close October 31st.

Now is the time to get to work if your church needs a new organ. Mr. Tuten is doing this to increase the circulation and as his paper is up-to-date you will miss nothing by subscribing for it, and we are sure that he deserves more patronage from the people of this county.—Howard Hustler.

Our thanks are due Editor Dunham for his very kind and complimentary notice of the Republicans organ contest.

In Clearfield county the 11th day of July the time expired for the rebate of 5 per cent. on taxes assessed and placed in the hands of collectors for collection. Thomas F. Cooper, the collector for the borough of Clearfield, received $51,000 of a duplicate containing, probably, $65,000, which is unprecedented in the history of the borough.

HOW TO GET GOOD ROADS.

The Enemies of Mud Should Unite in a Campaign for a Principle.

One great reason for the prevalence of bad roads throughout the United States is lack of agreement and united action among the advocates of improvement.

Everybody prefers good roads to bad. Everybody knows that the roads can be improved only by the expenditure of money and labor. But here the agreement ends. There is a great variety of ideas and schemes for securing the desired object There is no end of discussion, but very little is accomplished. Some people would rather travel through mud than to have the roads improved by any other plan than their own "pet scheme." Thus road reformers themselves sometimes actually hinder the cause to which they are devoted.

If the roads of the country are to be made good within the lifetime of the present generation it is high time the advocates of good roads should unite in support of a few general propositions, and go to work in favor of a general plan. If a national good roads movement ever gets started nothing can stop it. It will sweep everything before it But the difficulty is to get it started.

One great advantage possessed by the national aid plan, which is now becoming so popular, is that it is general instead of sectional or local. It is as broad as the whole country. It can bring into harmonious, united action the friends of good roads in every State and it is the only plan yet proposed that can do this.

The friends of national aid will make a mistake if they undertake to work out details in advance. They will disagree among themselves and give objections every advantage. They should go to work for the general principle and leave details to be worked out later. This was the plan of action adopted by Gladstone. When his opponents asked for details of any great reform which he advocated, Gladstone would answer: "There will be time enough to work out the details when we get the power."

The advocates of national aid will do well to emulate the example of this great English statesman. They should organize everywhere and fight for the principle, leaving details to be worked out in due time.

Just About Half Sick

How many times you hear people say: "I don't know what ails me—I am tired all the time—don't feel like moving—don't care to go anywhere—don't want anyone to bother me—nothing interests me—I feel half dead." It's not a pleasant tale. It shows a system at a low ebb—a system ready and fertile soil for any low type of fever or disease. It shows the need of a strong, all round tonic—a tonic that will reach every part, every organ—Brain, Nerves, Stomach and Muscles. A medicine that will give a new feeling of life, a new energy and spring to the played out system. A time-tried, time-testen medicine—Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

BUILD THE BRIDGE.

People Living Near Beech Creek are Anxious to See Bridge Span Creek There.

No final action has been taken by the commissioners of Centre and Clinton counties towards the erection of an inter-county bridge across Beech creek near the Hubbard and Loomis farms, two miles northwest of Beech Creek borough, to replace the old wooden structure carried away by the flood a year and a half ago.

Last month the commissioners of the two counties met on the ground and viewed the situation. A large body of residents of Liberty and Beech Creek townships and Beech Creek borough were present in an effort to show the necessity of a bridge being erected immediately. But the commissioners are slow to act and while they delay the summer is passing and the best time and most favorable weather conditions for doing the work are not taken advantage of.

It appears that the Clinton county authorities are leaving the matter quietly go over for another year. The Centre county commissioners show a disposition to take the matter up at once without further parleying.

During all this time, through the months of freezing winter weather the traveling public and especially the farmers of that vicinity have had to ford the creek, which, owing to the continued rains, has not been low since the bridge went out. Several narrow escapes from drowning and frequent damage to vehicles and goods hauled therein have resulted from the dangerous ford.

It is high time the men placed in position to look after the welfare and business of the public take up this matter of a new bridge and erect a substantial structure. Being on the dividing line of the two counties the expense will be borne equally by Centre and Clinton counties and not percepibly affect the treasury of either.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

When the stomach is overloaded, when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secret mucus, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. Dropped Her Teeth in the Mail.

The Philadelphia Press tells a story which illustrates well how queer things sometimes get into the mails. An elderly woman was seen the other day waiting patiently for a long time beside a mailbox in Philadephia. Finally a postman appeared and she explained to him the object of her wait. She had hurried to the box to mail a letter, and just as the deposit was about to be made she sneezed violently, dislocating her false teeth, which, catching in the same hand that held the letter, in her agitated absent-mindedness she placed in the postbox by mistake. The post-man returned her lost molars, and told her it was not unusual to find many odd things deposited in this way, which somewhat relieved the mind of the old woman, who, placing her teeth in position and thanking the carrier, hurried to her nearby home.

THE HIGH DIVER'S ESCAPE.

Further Particulars in Regard to Kid McComb's Accident.

Ever since the report of Kid McComb's accident became public, conflicting stories have been in circulation. In order to set the matter straight we publish the following account of the accident taken from the Sunbury Daily.

Kid McComb, the champion high diver of the world, who played an engagement at Island Park with the Hatch-Adams Carnival Company several weeks ago, came within a hair's breadth of being killed while making his daring leap into a tank of water, at Edgewood Park, Shamokin.

McComb accepted the position of high diver after Professor Bobby Marshall had met death while performing the feat. Up until this time the new man met with no accidents.

Although a strong wind was blowing he decided not to disappoint the large audience assembled. He clamored slowly up the high ladder and finally reached the platform on the dizzy height.

A stiff breeze was blowing, but this did not deter the death-defying man. He crouched low, measured the distance from the tank with his eye and then leaped head foremost down towards the centre of the tank of water.

The tank being only five feet wide and three feet deep, it was necessary for Professor McComb to land in the center and he would have done so had not the breeze carried him to one side as his body shot through the air.

Realizing that instant death was staring him in the face if he landed against the side of the tank, with one supreme effort the daring man shifted his flying body and he landed in the tank, almost unhurt. The side of his head struck the canvas side of the tank and scraped the skin, while the sudden shock from the concussion injured the daring man internally, as he expectorated blood afterwards.

It was a narrow escape from a horrible death and yet but few of the spectators realized the ordeal Professor McComb had just passed through.

Corrosive Ink.

With an impatient grunt the bookkeeper threw away his pen and put a new one in the holder. "It's terrible," he said, "how ink corrodes pens. In six or seven hours a new pen will begin to scratch. It keeps me busy changing the blamed things, let alone the expense. There's money in it for the man who will invent a non-corrosive ink." An old man a bill collector—remarked to him: "My young friend, I'll tell you a sure way to stop your ink from corroding your pen. Take a few rusty iron nails and put them in your inkwell. The ink's corrosive acid will play itself out on the nails. A pen that only lasts you a day now should, with my method, last a least a week.

HERE'S A WAY TO SAVE DOCTORS BILLS.

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit

It's a matter of general interest just now how one's physical condition can be got into shade to best receive the benefits of the summer season. Especially is this true of the children. They have become run down by a winter of unnatural manner of living because of ill-considered food and much time spent indoors. Spring comes with its sunshine, its fresh vegetables and all else invigorating, but the children are in no condition to receive nature's remedies.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians says: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does to-day. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb, is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families but they prescribe it for their clients. First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotic.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however says: Our duty is to expose danger and records the means for advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entiled to the information."

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Jeff Steele, of Julian, had a narrow escape from death on Wednesday evening. He had been in Bellefonte during the day and started to walk to Milesburg to catch a train home. Just below the old nail works site he sat down along the railroad track to rest and had removed one of his shoes as his feet hurt him. Just then an extra freight on its way to Bellefonte came around the curve and before Steele could get out of the road, it struck and knocked him down a ten foot embankment.

The train crew thought the man was surely killed, and they picked him up brought him to Bellefonte and had him carried into the baggage room where medical attendance was summoned. It was found however that no bones were broken and the man was only slightly cut and bruised. He spent the night at the Garman House and Thursday morning left for his home in Julian not much the worse for his accident.

First Passenger Engine Repaired.

The first passenger engine to be overhauled and repaired at the New York Central railroad shops at Oak Grove was turned out complete a day or two ago. It was No. 703 and had been taken into the shops several months ago. A number of freight engines have been repaired at Oak Grove and at present there are eight locomotives in the shops. The number of men in this department of the shops is being increased each week

—Last Friday the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fultz, of Woodward, while playing with matches in the yard at his home, set his clothing on fire and before the flames could be extinguished was dangerously burned. Dr. Ard, of Woodward, was immediately called and took charge of the injured boy and at present there are hopes that he may recover.

—The members of the Soliciting committee for the Fish Hatchery, take this method of thanking the citizens of Philipsburg and Snow Shoe for their substantial contributions in aid of the scheme Joseph W. Rightnour was the member of the Soliciting committee who visited these points.

—The First national bank of Tyrone has purchased the Study block, corner Pennsylvania Ave. and Tenth St. in that place for $22,500. It is the intention to erect a handsome bank building on the corner.

SOME INDUSTRIAL NEWS.

Old Collins Quarry to be put in Operation—Bright Prospects Ahead for Pleasant Gap.

The Bellefonte Furnace Company are putting in operation the old Collin's stone quarry near Coleville and are now taking out stone for the furnace. Samuel Sheffer is superintendent. This will give employment to quite a number of additional men.

It is rumored that the American Lime and Stone Company are about to purchase an extensive tract of land in and about Pleasant Gap and will open up lime stone quarries there which will give employment to several hundred men. They have already closed a deal with John Herman for 40 acres of land and it is alleged paid $4000 for it. The other land which they are negotiating for belongs to A. V. Miller, John Bilger, Mrs. Hartsock and Mike Spiker.

If this deal goes through it will greatly benefit our sister town of Pleasant Gap, for with the new State Fish Hatchery located so close to them, she can boast of quite a number of industries.

Who knows but what in the near future we will have a big hotel at Pleasant Gap for the accommodation of the traveling public and summer visitors. New houses will have to be built for the men employed at the quarries to occupy.

Are we building air castles when we say that in the near future we may see a "Greater Bellefonte" which shall take within its corporate limits, Pleasant Gap, Axe Mann, the Forge, Zion, Coleville, Bush Addition and Milesburg, with a trolley line extending from Milesburg to Pleasant Gap and possibly Centre Hall, with a side line to State College.

Is it not possible that Gheen, Spigelmyer and Gamble, the Jersey Shore capitalists, have this idea in view when they purchased the splendid water power from P. B. Crider & Son. It could be easily utilized to furnish power for a trolley line. Then there is the water power owned by the Green's at Milesburg which would be just the thing for this purpose.

Although we have lost our Glass Works and will soon loose the Scale Works let us look on the bright side of things, for you know the old saying "behind the clouds the Sun's still shining."

CENTRE COUNTY MEN.

Who Hold Good Positions in the Huntingdon Reformatory.

Centre county has quite a number of men who hold responsible position at the State Reformatory at Huntingdon says the Centre Hall Reporter.

P. M. Weber has been connected with the institution for a period of a dozen years, and consequently is the senior of the Centre county representatives in that institution. His former home was Boalsburg. He had charge of the laundry department, a very important department, and one which Mr. Weber thoroughly understands. Visitors are always pleased with the very fine work this department turns out.

Next to Mr. Weber in point of length of service comes T. G. Perdue, of Bellefonte, who has served in various places in the Reformatory for ten years. For some time past he has been the trusted guard of tower No. 1. This position, as well as those previously held by him, is filled with entire credit to himself.

C. C. Bell, formerly of Aaronsburg, is one of the best men in the trades department, being the instructor in brick and stone work. No department can show such practical results as this one.

The inmates actually build houses that are needed in the place. Some of the recent buildings are a greenhouse, foundry and barn, all of the most modern type, and are constructed of brick and stone. In this department may also be seen some of the finest stone statuary and also the very finest plaster casts, fine pressed brick work and, in fact, every thing that goes to make up the very best in this line of work is taught in this department.

E. E. Beck, former home Loveville, has charge of the farm, and there may surely be seen the practical value of a clear hand at the helm, as the farm always shows the effects of good work.

C. J. Taylor, formerly of Bellefonte, is the instructor in plumbing Here, as in all the trade departments, the practical side of work is taught. Better work than is shown in this branch can nowhere be found. The work here must be good, and with such a man at the head it is sure to be so. The plumbing, everywhere visible through the buildings, is proof of the efficiency of Mr. Taylor.

Prof. W. A. Brown, who is well known in Penns Valley ever since he wore knickerbockers on account of his connection with brass bands, is a resident of Farmers Mills. He is inst uctor in music, assistant bandmaster and extra teacher. Mr. Brown is like the family horse, works anywhere, and is the kind of material that is most sought after.

There is no department of the institution that has a better opportunity to make an exhibition of its work than that conducted by the knight of the brush, J. W. Adams, who before going to Huntingdon, was a resident of Millheim. The skill of Mr. Adams is everywhere visible. He has fine taste, and makes the prettiest combinations of colors.

The tin shop has for its foreman and instructor, B. H. Shaffer, of Bellefonte. There is much practical work done in these shops, all of which is neatly done and rightly executed.

J. N. Boal, of Tusseyville, is chief cook, and all whose good fortune it is to dine at the officers' table will vouch for the assertion that he is rightly placed. Mr. Boal exhibits great skill as a caterer, and his efforts are greatly appreciated.

Although he has only been at the institution a short time, to Prof. F. P Atherton, of State College, must be given the credit for having built up splendid musical organizations. Prof. Atherton has charge of the band and orchestra, and the music the organizations render is equal to, if not superior, to that of bands and orchestras of great reputation in the larger cities. Music is an important feature at the institution, and under the direction of Prof. Atherton the music lover revels in pleasure.

J. R. Wyle, formerly of Aaronsburg, recently went to the Reformatory to assume charge of the yard, but being a very able mechanic, he was soon placed in charge of the class in brick work and plastering. It is needless to say that one will see good results from that department for every one knows the man in charge will bring out all there is in his students.

Fifty Years a Pharmacist.

The News Idea a journal published at Detroit, Michigan, and devoted to the interests pharmacists, in their last issued published a picture of our well known fellow townsman F. Potts Green and accompany it with a complimentary notice which is in part as follows:

Fifty years in pharmacy is a record to be proud of and Mr. F. Potts Green of Bellefonte, Pa., is one of the few who can claim that honorable distinction. He began in 1853 at the age of 19 years, and has been actively engaged in the management of his drug store ever since that time. In the early days goods were usually bought twice a year, in the spring and fall; sufficient stock being laid in at the latter season to last until navigation opened in the spring—goods being received by canal boat. Mr. Green has, naturally, seen many changes in the drug business, and some of its later institutions, such as cutters and St Louis "synthetics" (?), do not meet with his approval. With the progressive spirit of modern pharmacy he is heartily in sympathy, and he certainly does not belong to that class that bewails the departure of "the good old days."

To Mr. F. Potts Green, gentleman of the old school and professional pharmacist of half a century's service, The New Idea extends its hearty congratulations, and wishes him many more years of health, prosperity and happiness.

The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.
But the endorsement of friends is.
Now supposing you had a bad back.
A Lame, Weak or Aching one.
Would you experiment on it?
You will read of many so-called cures.
Endorsed by strangers from far-away places,
It's different when the endorsement comes from home.
Easy to prove local testimony,
Home endorsement is the proof that backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills.
Read this case.

W. E. Haines of 1 Beaver Row locomotive engineer says: "I was suffering from an acute lameness in my back and a dull lingering aching over my kidneys. I felt it in my head also and there were pains over my eyes and in the top and back of my head and in the upper part of my spine. I was afraid I would not be able to attend to my duties as I was on night work and had to get some rest in the day time for on account of my back and these pains I could not rest well, I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and obtained them from the Bush Block drug store. They proved to be just the remedy I required for they removed the whole trouble."

BROOM STOCK BOOMS

From the facts presented you will understand why stock of the International Broom Company, Manufacturers of the Twentieth Century Broom, is a gilt-edged investment, and why it is regarded as such by all who will not put their money into any enterprise unless they see great and speedy profits ahead. Owing to the quick growth and great progress of the International Broom Company the stock has been advanced to

60 CENTS A SHARE.

We would advise intending investors to avail themselves of this low price and purchase before another raise. With the various applications for sub-companies now in hand, there is no doubt that about the latter part of August the price will be advanced to

75 CENTS A SHARE.

The high place The New Broom gained in public favor is due to the Company's ability to produce solid proof of every statement.

Contract closed for sub-company in Chicago with largest broom manufacturer in the United States.

Contract closed for sub-company in New Haven, Conn

Contract will be closed shortly for sub-company in Kansas City.

Contract will be closed shortly for sub-company in Fall River, Mass.

Contract will be closed shortly for sub-company in City of Mexico.

Sub-Company now manufacturing the New Broom in Ottawa, Ont.

All on royalties to the parent company—The Ottawa Company alone will pay the International Broom Company about $25,000 a year in royalties.

20 Other Applications for Sub-Companies Now Pending.

WE ASSERT AND CAN PROVE

That the demand for The New Broom is as wide as the civilized world.

That it is the only sanitary broom made.

That the Brooklyn factory made in April, 1903, twice as many brooms as in March and four times as many as in February, and earned a profit of more than 25 per cent. over its operating expenses on its production.

That dealers, wholesale and retail, think so well of The New Broom that they are becoming stockholders in the Company.

If we could not prove all this, and more, we should not expect any careful and conservative investor to buy this stock.

As we are thoroughly familiar with the plans and projects of the Company and the possibilities of The New Broom we unhesitatingly declare that this stock should very soon pay a dividend in the par value and rapidly advance until it sells for $2.00 or $3.00 per share.

It is, therefore, advisable that intending investors who wish to investigate this proposition do so at an early date before the next advance in price is announced. Those who subscribe now will be benefited by the increase.

Intending investors can obtain full particulars and ample proof of the claims of this Company on application at our office.

Plus and Minus People.

We all know people who never add anything to our fun, our information, our happiness or our comfort. They are always trying to get something from us without giving anything in return. They are sponges that absorb but give nothing back. When they leave us we have a minus feeling, a consciousness of having lost something. On the other hand, we know people who always give more than they take from us; they are resourceful, suggestive, helpful, every-thing increases under their touch, for they are not trying to see how much they can get, but, instead, to give us something. They are optimists, they turn the best side of themselves to us, say pleasant things, and are helpful in their intercourse. They do not try to drain us dry, we have a plus feeling when they depart, a consciousness of having found something, they seem to leave a part of themselves with us. Like the rose, they bestow their fragrance and their beauty for us to think about after they are gone. Everybody loves the man or woman who leaves something behind, a pleasant memory, a helpful suggestion, or kind word. Nobody cares for the absorbent people who get everything they can and give nothing.—Success.

As yet, none of the bold fellows have been detected but in almost every case certain persons have been suspected.—Jersey Shore Herald.

A CLEVER ILLUSTRATION
WITH CONCLUSIVE PROOF.
There is an old formula in philosophy which says that no two things can occupy the same place at the same time. As a simple illustration, drive a nail into a board and you will find with every stroke of the hammer, the nail will force aside the particles of wood into which it is being driven, finally making a place for itself, and proving that the nail and the wood do not occupy the same place at the same time.
DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER and Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cannot occupy the same place at the same time. If you are troubled with frequent pains in the back; if your urine stains linen; if you urinate frequently during the night, and a burning pain accompanies its passage, your kidneys and bladder are in bad shape and should be treated at once.
Every dose of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY slowly but surely pushes aside some of the particles of the dread diseases of the kidneys and bladder, lives, blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and constipation, until they completely disappear. Do not lose faith or find fault, if you are not entirely cured by one bottle, because if these diseases have fastened their grip on you the longer and harder it is to drive them away.
Druggists sell it in New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Two New Routes to be Established with Bellefonte as Starting Point.

September the 1st 1903 will see the establishment of two new rural free delivery routes whose starting point shall be Bellefonte. Postmaster W. W. Montgomery received word Thursday authorizing him to establish such routes. There will be two carriers appointed at a salary of $600 per annum including horse hire.

Route No. 1 will start at Bellefonte and go southwest on Buffalo Run road to Tressler's thence west to H. Armagast's; thence retrace to Tressler's corner; thence southwest to Fillmore; west to Greene corner; north to Hoover corner; east and south to Roan corner; north east and south east on Mountain road to Post Office.

This route is twenty miles long, covers 15 square miles of territory. There are 146 houses on the route and 730 people receive mail.

Route No. 2—Begins at Post Office in Bellefonte, and southeast on pike to Axe Mann; south to Dale corner; southeast and south to Blue Spring corner; southwest to George Klines; retrace to Peru; south to Zimmermans; retrace to Peru; northeast to Pleasant Gap; southeast and south to Bilgers; north to Comley's corner; northeast to Bilger cross roads; southeast and southwest to Smeltzers, retrace to Bilgers cross roads; northeast to Gentel's corner; northwest to Axe Mann road; southwest to old pike; south to Weaver's northwest to Post Office on old pike.

Route No. 2 covers an area of 15 square miles and is 22½ miles long. There are 170 houses on the route and the population is 850.

The establishing of these two mail routes will mean the doing away with the post offices at Fillmore, Buffalo Run, Axe Mann and Pleasant Gap.

Snakes Storm Village.

Altoona, July 23.—Eight hundred rattlesnakes, each measuring upwards from three feet, were accidentally liberated at the village of Highland Fling, on top of the Alleghenies, about six miles north of here, Sunday, and consternation is reported as reigning among the residents.

J. C. Albright, of that place, had collected the reptiles for an Eastern agency. The cage door became unfastened in some unknown way, and before it could be closed the reptiles escaped. Albright was badly bitten and came to the hospital for treatment. On his way he was stopped twice for fast driving, but when he showed snake bites and told the story of rattlers swarming in the town, he was allowed to continue the journey. He has a fighting chance for recovery.

Outsiders have not ventured into the town yet to see if others have been bitten by the snakes.

TWO BOTTLES CURED HIM.
"I was troubled with kidney complaint for about two years," writes A. H. Davis, of Mt. Sterling, Ia., "but two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure effected a permanent cure." C. M. Parrish.

Yankee Inventions in Syria.

For the first time the ancient and most primitive methods of labor in the Holy Land have been disturbed by the introduction of Western inventions. The natives of Syria have been jolted out of the rut of ages by the boom of the threshing machine and the musical whir of the reaping machine!

Last summer an enterprising American imported the first reaper and set it to cutting the grain in the Syrians fields. He had it sent all the way from Chicago. Then a little later a steam thresher, the product of an Indiana foundry, was heard in Coele-Syria. It created great excitement among the farmers. They were afraid of it at first, then later concluded it to be the work of the evil one and tried to destroy it. They were with difficulty brought to see its many advantages over the old way of treading out the grain, which had been in use since the time of Solomon very likely.

TAX ON ALCOHOL.

Furniture Association of America Wants Tax Thereon Reduced

WILL PETITION CONGRESS

Action Taken at Annual Convention of the Organization May Lead to Important Results.

LOVERING GIVES SOME FIGURES

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Furniture Association of America, a national organization of retail dealers, manufacturers, and their representatives began its first annual convention here Thursday night The meeting was attended by 2000 delegates from all parts of the United States. President William L. Shearer, of Boston, called the convention to order and William C. Lovering, representative in congress of the Fourteenth Massachusetts district, was the principal speaker discussing "Methods of Extending Our Export Trade."

Resolutions were adopted "That it is the sense of the Furniture Association of America that legislation to relieve our manufacturing interests from the present prohibitory tax on alcohol should be promptly enacted by congress and that our laws relating to the payment of drawback on exported articles of domestic manufacture should be adopted as provided for in the bill introduced in the last congress by William C. Lovering, of Massachusetts.

Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to Nelson W. Aldrick, chairman of the committee on finance of the United States senate, and to Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the committee on ways and means of the house of representatives.

Congressman Lovering said in part:

"The statistics show that within the past twenty-five years the number of factories has doubled, the amount of capital invested in them has been quadrupled, the number of employes is now nearly three times as great, and the total value of their product has grown from $5,500,000,000 in 1880 to $15,000,000,000 at the present time."

Mr. Lovering said that the tax of $2.08 on each gallon of commercial alcohol has operated to prevent its general use in this country and to give the control of the world's markets in articles of manufacture, of which alcohol is an important material to Germany, France, Great Britain and particularly to Germany, where there is a tax rate of only fifty-six cents per proof gallon of distilled spirits.

"If our legislators are wise they will not antagonize the great growing sentiment in favor of tariff revision, whether it comes under what is known as the Iowa idea, or that older and country wide demand that has been forcing itself upon the attention of the party leaders for the past few years.

"Nothing less than a liberal drawback law enacted at the next session of congress will save the protective tariff from a fearful onslaught, if not utter demolition.

Rev. McArdle's Tribute to Pope Leo.

Leo the XIII, the 258th Pope, that have sat in the chair of Peter, is no more! Of these 258 Popes, to say the least, he was one of the greatest, nay more—and history will bear me out—he was one of the greatest men the world ever produced in any walk of life. John Wanamaker struck the nail on the head when he said he should rank high among the twelve greatest men that ever lived. The greatness of men comes from various sources. I would say the greatness of Leo the XIII came not so much from his great scholarship and statesmanship, as from his broad and transcendent charity. St. Paul speaking of charity says, "Charity is patient, is kind, beareth all things, endureth all things." Leo XIII showed these features of charity throughout his career. He was kind to all classes and creeds, and no creed at all, his object being to better all. When he ascended the Papal Throne all the rulers of Europe were hostile to the church. Leo's policy was to approach—to reconcile. It was crowned with success. May the world, for its betterment, in the future, see more such good and great men as Leo the XIII.

The presentation ceremony took place in the governor's private rooms at the executive department, and there were present besides a number of Col. Wilson's personal friends Auditor General Hardenbergh and State Treasurer Harris. The governor in making the presentation referred to Col. Wilson's daring in keeping track of the enemy and sending his information to the authorities. Col. Wilson made a feeling reply.

The medal is of solid gold, and is suspended from a gold state coat-of-arms with colors in enamel. Col. Wilson was also voted a colonel's commission, which has been engrossed on parchment and handed him.

A Commendable Act.

Among the passengers on an accommodation train from Zanesville, Ohio, to a down river point the other day was an elderly woman who, while in Zanesville, purchased a pair of fine young pullets that were full of life and about half grown. The conductor passed through the car for fares and when the woman attempted to hand her ticket to Mr. Pugh one of the pullets escaped and flew out the window.

Without a second's hesitation the conductor pulled the bell rope, brought the train to a sudden standstill in the middle of the McElhiney bottoms and called to the brakemen to accompany him. The engineer alighted from his engine and in the twinkling of an eye almost the three had captured the pullet and it was restored to its owner.

The signals to go ahead were given and the train resumed its journey.

BARGAIN BABIES.

If babies were for sale the most inveterate bargain-hunting woman in the world would not look for a bargain baby. She would want the best baby that could be bought, regardless of price.

Every woman naturally craves a healthy, handsome child, and her craving can be gratified if she will but remember that the child's health is her own gift, and to give health she must have it to give. Mothers whose babies have been weak and puny have nursed in strength their first strong child after using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is the best preparative for maternity, encouraging the appetite, quieting the nerves and inducing refreshing sleep. It gives the mother strength to give her child, and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

"My wife had been sick nearly all her life," says Mr. R. E. Fricke, of Petersburg, Menard Co., Illinois, Box 367, "and after trying everything I could think of I made up my mind to try 'Favorite Prescription.' I got six bottles, which my wife took, a tablespoonful three times a day, until the baby came. She felt better after taking the first bottle, and when baby was born he weighed nine and a half pounds. Today he is six months old and weighs twenty-two pounds. He is as good a child as any one could wish. The doctor says he is as healthy as any baby could be, and also says the use of your 'Favorite Prescription' was the cause of such a healthy baby."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best and safest laxative for the use of delicate women.

Great Fall of Rock at the Salona Quarry.

A dozen men had a narrow escape from being crushed by a fall of rock and earth at the Bellefonte Lime Company's quarry at Salona Thursday afternoon. While the men were at work about 3:30 o'clock there was a slight fall of rock and they all ran far enough away to be out of danger. A few moments later a mass of rock and earth estimated to weigh 5,000 tons came tumbling down, the top of the ledge from which it fell being 112 feet high.

Later in the afternoon there was another mass of rock fell, the total weight of all that fell being estimated at 12,000 tons. Trucks, tools and the men's hats and coats were buried under the rocks and operations for the present greatly interfered with. A new supply of tools was obtained from Lock Haven Friday morning before work could be resumed. The escape of the men was almost miraculous.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

—John Behee, of Wilkes Barre, died there Saturday night, aged 54. He was known as the "hairless man." There was not a single hair on his whole body. In early youth he had a spell of sickness and all his hair came out Eminent physicians in different parts of the country treated his case, but could not restore the hair. Nature came partly to his rescue. The scalp became very hard and was impervious to the cold. Behee worked outside on the coldest days without head gear and never felt the effects of the cold.

JOHN TAYLOR WON.

Horse Owned at Lock Haven Won Big Purse.

John C. Merrill, of Lock Haven, is the owner of John Taylor, who won the fifth and deciding heat in the big race at Detroit on Thursday.

A dispatch from Detroit gives the following particulars of the final heat:

John Taylor, the gray gelding that ran away in the third heat of the merchants' and manufacturers' $10,000 stake race Wednesday at Grosse Pointe, and then won the fourth in impressive fashion, Thursday afternoon won the fifth heat and the race from Wainscott, the heavy played favorite. There were only the two horses in the heat, the others had gone to the barn in accordance with the rules of the stake. Taylor brought $100 and Wainscott $80 before the heat Thursday afternoon, which was the first on Thursday's card.

The horses were away on the third score to a perfect start. John Taylor had the pole and at the first turn was a half length in the lead. The grey steadily increased the distance until at the half mile he was more than a length to the good. At the turn into the stretch Wainscott made a great effort, but did not have the speed and the race was John Taylor's by a length. The grey was not driven out at any time during the mile.

The winner was greeted with great enthusiasm and decorated with a floral saddle, while Driver Wilson was kept busy doffing his hat in response to the applause which his clever driving brought forth. John Taylor is owned by John Merrill, of Lock Haven, Pa., who purchased him from M. H. Reardon, of Indianapolis, for $3.650. It is said that Mr. Merrill was offered $10,000 for the horse Thursday afternoon and refused it.

Pennsylvania Crop Condition.

The bulletin of the United States department of agriculture relative to crop conditions in Pennsylvania, says for last week:

The precipitation was confined to well distributed thunder showers and in localities in Adams, Northumberland, Tioga and Washington counties excessive rainfall, hail, and high winds seriously damaged hillside and lowland crops and fruit. The conditions were highly favorable for haying, harvesting, the maturing of wheat and rye, and the growth and development of other crops in general. Haping is well under way in practically all parts of the state, but in several northern counties it is being delayed to allow grasses and timothy to make further growth, and the crop now promises to be heavier than the condition early in June gave reason to expect. Wheat and rye will give satisfactory returns in most districts, while in others the heads are short and the grain small. The harvest of these grains is well advanced in southern counties and rapid progress is being made in other sections. Corn is thrifty and growing rapidly but most fields are uneven, weedy, and short. Oats are improving and early sown fields are heading nicely, but rust is causing serious damage in a large acreage. Potatoes are well set and filling rapidly, and garden truck shows marked improvement. Tobacco plants are small as a rule but generally healthy and making favorable advancement. Buckwheat recently sown germinated very rapidly and a large acreage than usual will doubtless be allotted to this crop. Apples are filling nicely and berries are plentiful, but other fruits will be scarce at best.

—Major General Charles Miller, at the Second Brigade camp at Somerset Monday said: "I saw the German troops at Strassburg and on the border where the best are kept, because of the danger of losing Alsace. I saw the English review at Aldershot and the Swiss troops at Audermatt and Devil's Bridge, and through the mountains. If the infantry of this division did not present a better alignment than the English at Aldershot I should feel much chagrined and I wish I had Captain Jones and the Sheridan Troop to teach the English cavalry their business."

Active at 88 Years.

George P. Miller, who lives with his son George Miller, Jr., near Linden Hall, although past 88 years of age, is hale and hearty, with the exception of slight rheumatics which first afflicted him a few weeks ago. Mr. Miller is a carpenter by trade and taught many young men the art of building. Some of his apprentices are now the foremost contractors in Centre county.

A year ago, when the aged gentleman's son was building a new house on the farm where he now lives, Mr. Miller climbed the scaffolding as easily as a man half his age. He is today a remarkably well preserved man—both physically and mentally.

JUNIATA PARK.

Altoona's New and Beautiful Suburb, a Desirable Home Investment, Wide Streets and Pavements, Brick Walks, Concrete Curbs, Paved Street Gutters, Sewerage System, Water Supply, Street Car Conveniences, Electric Light, Protected Building Lines, No Shanties or Shacks to be Built, No Saloons, a Beautiful Public Park of Nine Acres, Everything That Goes to Make an Ideal Residence District Will Be Found in Juniata Park.

The West Juniata Realty Company own and have laid out in lots about one hundred acres of land immediately in front of the Juniata Shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and in a short time will offer these lots for sale.

They have named this plot "Juniata Park." Further particulars will be found elsewhere in this paper.

Juniata park is within one minute's walk of the Logan Valley street railway leading from Altoona to Tyrone and seven minutes by trolley from the Logan house in Altoona, is partly in the borough of Juniata and the remainder in Logan township, lying between Juniata borough on the north and east and the golf grounds and new club house of the Pennsylvania Railroad company on the west, which alone separates it from the city of Altoona with its more than 50,000 population.

The land is peculiarly adapted for home building. In addition to the sewerage system being constructed, the slope of the land is sufficient to furnish complete natural drainage; the ground itself is largely river bottom formation, containing natural subdrainage which insures dry cellars and healthy surroundings.

The present Juniata shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad company employ about 3,000 men with probably the largest average earning capacity of any equal number of employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. We are advised that plans and specifications are already under way for enlargment of these shops so as to give employment to about 5,000 men and which shops, when completed, will turn out 500 new locomotives annually.

In addition to this, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is constructing large steel car shops for the manufacture of steel cars and in close proximity they have under way a roundhouse that will cost in the neighborhood of one million dollars; within five minute's walk of Juniata Park is also situated the car shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, giving employment to more than 1,500 men; the new distributing yards centre within ten minutes' walk of Juniata Park so that it is peculiarly accessible to the great body of employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, including train forces.

The limited number of lots that are offered for sale at the low prices fixed, makes lots in Juniata Park unusually desirable as an investment as well as a place for homes. The promoters have left nothing undone to make this the ideal town plot of Central Pennsylvania.

The streets are from sixty to seventy feet wide, pavements thirteen feet wide, protected building line ten to fifteen feet, all sewers, water lines, etc., will be laid in the alleys and free connection therewith will be furnished to lot purchasers; no poles will be allowed in the streets excepting the necessary poles for lighting and street railways; objectionable or demoralizing business will be excluded from the plot—all these offer inducements that will not be found any place else in Central Pennsylvania.

The wooden park, for the use of lot owners, is of itself a convenience that no other town plot offers.

The price fixed for lots are lower than any other lots of equally desirable location without the additional conveniences and facilities here offered. Already advance applications for lots have been made to such an extent as to insure a very rapid sale as well as the building of many very desirable homes.

The management of Juniata park had intended not to offer this plot for sale until all the improvements were completed, but owing to the difficulty in obtaining paving brick, sewer pipe and labor, and in response to urgent requests from parties who desire to purchase lots and begin building at once, they have decided to throw the plot open on August 3, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of enabling parties who desire lots to procure the same. On that day each lot will be plainly marked with its price, from which there will be no deviation. The terms of the sale can be learned by consulting large advertisement elsewhere in this paper. Prior to that date there will be no salesman on the ground, but persons who can not be present on that day, by remitting $50.00 on account of the purchase price, will have selected for them a desirable lot or lots, which may be exchanged within ten days from August 3 for any similar priced lots remaining unsold.

The city of Altoona is short of houses for the increasing force of the Pennsylvania Railroad company; there are no idle houses in the vicinity of Juniata park; there are no lots unsold or in the market in the immediate vicinity of the Juniata shops with the exception of a few scattered lots which are held at prices ranging from one to two thousand dollars.

Address all communications and make checks payable to Juniata Realty Co.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

What will probably prove to be a successful attempt at suicide was made Friday evening at DuBois by a one-legged man supposed to be E. A. Veard, of Kewaydin, Clearfield county. Carbolic acid was the means used, and Veard now lies on a cot in DuBois hospital, hovering between life and death, with small hope for his recovery.
